As standard practice in political campaigns, payment for services is required in advance. The tumultuous nature of a campaign makes that a risk for the candidate since changes in plans may need to be executed while arrangements for payments seem like a distraction. An option that PostMark offers is that you can personally guarantee the payments. This will allow work to proceed without the delays associated with preparing invoices and payments in advance.

If you would like to take advantage of this option, please indicate that below:

I, _____, am personally guaranteeing that PostMark will be paid for the services, postage, and other fees that may be associated with my campaign. This is to be limited to _____ and subject to these restrictions _____
